JOEL WALTER

Nowhere in Fiction

ABOUT:

“Honest and heartfelt. Joel wears these songs on his sleeve. There is no second guessing as to who this person is. He writes and sings from his heart. You believe it.” - DAMIEN JURADO

Joel Walter follows up his well-received full-length debut ‘Heart of Branches’ with “Nowhere in Fiction” on October 31, 2011, an EP teaser for a Damien Jurado produced full-length coming in 2012.

Walter continues his tradition of straight forward storytelling on ‘Nowhere in Fiction’ with the haunting yet fiery "Lost in the Desert", plaintive cry for opportunity 'Like A Song', and heartbreakingly bleak memorial of "Fade Away".

The three-song EP was produced by Damien Jurado, who collaborated with Walter and engineer Kory Kruckenberg on the recording sessions over a 12 day period at VU Recording in Seattle.

PRESS QUOTES:

“Full of folk’s trans-generational power - Walter is no novice, as his thick, intricate picking shows, digging in on a set of... songs that are meant to get under your skin, and do.”

- All Music Guide

“Traditional but badass...”

- Giant Robot
